Subject: Launch of OPM's Structured Resume Review Training

The U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) is pleased to launch a free, self-paced web training on the use of Structured Resume Reviews as a way to meet agency goals in support of Executive Order (EO) 13932 on Modernizing and Reforming the Assessment and Hiring of Federal Job Candidates.

What Is a Structured Resume Review?

A Structured Resume Review is a screening (pass/fail) assessment whereby a trained panel of two or more subject matter experts (SMEs) follows a systematic process to review an applicant's resume and come to agreement on whether the applicant has the required specialized experience necessary to successfully perform the job. This process is recommended as an assessment option for positions that are:

- Highly specialized or technical;
- At a grade level for which there is no education substitution (i.e., an applicant must qualify based on specialized experience); and
- Likely to have a smaller applicant pool (or larger recruitments for which multiple hurdles are being applied, multiple selections are being made, and agencies can dedicate a larger number of SMEs).

A Structured Resume Review does not result in a score or quality category for the applicants. It results in a qualified/not qualified determination based on the required specialized experience for the position.

Why Use a Structured Resume Review?

Although HR Specialists are the experts on Federal hiring processes and systems, there may be positions for which SMEs are in a better position than HR professionals to interpret experience as described in applicants' resumes. By utilizing SMEs to perform a Structured Resume Review, agencies can leverage SME technical knowledge to improve the quality of candidates referred to the hiring official.

Additionally, when agencies implement this hurdle consistent with OPM training, Structured Resume Review will count as a valid assessment hurdle in a multiple hurdle approach for purposes of meeting EO 13932 requirements. This practice includes training SMEs on how to conduct a Structured Resume Review; using a minimum of two SMEs to review each resume if using a consensus approach or including a third SME if using a tie-breaker approach to handle rating discrepancies; and requiring SMEs to provide a written justification statement for each review, which is reviewed by the HR Specialist for appropriateness.

Who Should Attend this Course?

This course is designed for experienced HR Specialists who are proficient in conducting job analyses, writing specialized experience statements, and providing guidance and direction to hiring managers (e.g., conducting training or focus groups). A solid background in Federal staffing is a pre-requisite for taking the course.

How Do I Sign-Up for this Training?

The Structured Resume Review course is available for free for all Federal agencies and is hosted on OPM's USA Staffing Online Training Portal at: <https://usastaffing.usalearning.net/login/index.php>. Please see the attached registration instructions.
